PEACE OR WAR BY MONDAY GERMANY'S CHOICE; SURVEY OF SENTIMENT INDICATES REFUSAL TO SIGN

STRIKE LEADERS ARE ARRESTED

WINNIPEG, June 17.—Ten strike leaders were arrested in their homes here early today and transported in automobiles to some place in the country, presumably Stony Mountain, by government police officials. Other arrests are reported to have been made in Calgary and other western points at the same time.

The official list of the persons arrested includes H. B. Russell, the Rev. William Lewis, H. E. Bray, George W. Armstrong, Alderman John Queen and A. A. Hays and four Russian agitators. The arrests and raids were made between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning.

Simultaneously with the arrests of the strike leaders, the royal northwest mounted police raided the labor temple, from which the strike has been conducted. Considerable literature, said to be of a Bolshevik nature, was seized. The police broke down doors and windows during the raid.

Seditious utterances is the charge on which the government caused the arrest of ten strike leaders early this morning. It was announced this afternoon that the prisoners are in custody in Stony Mountain penitentiary.

WILSON MAY LEAVE FOR AMERICA NEXT WEEK

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 17.—President Wilson hopes to leave Paris for Washington on June 21 or 25, if the German peace terms are acceptable.

Immediately after his arrival in Washington, the president will address congress. After clearing up pressing official business, he will start on his "swing around the circle" early in July.

It was said at the White House today that the president expected to spend three weeks on his speaking tour, explaining the peace treaty, and the League of Nations covenant. The itinerary has not been announced, but he expects to visit the principal cities of the country.

The president has made known a desire that his audiences during his tour be composed of opponents of the League of Nations plan rather than his supporters. He also informed White House officials that he might discuss the League covenant in public addresses during his visit to Belgium next week.

Should he leave Paris a week from tomorrow, the president should arrive in Washington about July 2. He will present the revised draft of the peace treaty to the senate and will discuss the treaty and League covenant in an address to a joint session of the senate and house.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 17.—The fourth and fifth divisions of regulars have been removed from the list of units scheduled for early return to the United States, the war department was advised today by General Pershing.

These two divisions were scheduled to sail from France this month and officials believed cancellation of the sailing orders would have been made only under plans of the inter-allied high command and with the approval of President Wilson.

RADICALS DRIVEN OUT
PARIS, June 17.—(French Wireless Service).—The important Donetz coal basin in southern Russia has been cleared of the Bolsheviks by the forces of General Denikin, which continue to push their offensive successfully, according to advices received here. ### BURN WHEAT TO STAMP OUT THE "ARMY WORM"

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., June 17.—Wheat and grain fields in Indiana were being burned today by farmers in an effort to stop the ravages of the "army worm," which has appeared in great numbers in various sections of the state, especially the east central portion. Gangs of fifty to one hundred men have been working together for several days in some places, but their efforts to poison and stop the worm, it is said, have had little result. As a last resort fire is being used in fields the worms have entered. No estimate of the loss is available, but near Muncie, alone, it is said exceed $50,000.

Hut Collapses; Soldiers Killed

OPPOSED TO BANISHED REPEAL OF FROM TOLEDO PROHIBITION BY JUDGE KILL IT

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 17.—By a vote of ten to three the house judiciary committee refused to adopt a motion of Representative Igoe, Democrat, of Missouri, to recommend repeal of war time prohibition in so far as it affects light wines and beer.

Joining Mr. Igoe in supporting the motion were Representatives Gard, Democrat, Ohio, and Cramer, Republican, Wisconsin.

The committee which is considering a bill by Chairman Volstead for enforcement of national prohibition, approved the motion defining intoxicating liquor as that containing one-half of one percent alcohol after amending it so as to name specifically as intoxicants alcohol, brandy, whiskey, rum, gin, beer, gin, porter and wine.

The bomb was exploded near the residence of William D. Austin, broker, and is believed to be the result to a telephone warning to Mr. Austin to get out of the house.

Several persons in property he owns on the south side. In that section reported bomb explosions have occurred in buildings occupied by negroes.

STRENGTHEN GARRISONS ALONG THE BORDER

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 17.—The government and people of Mexico consider as a violation of Mexican sovereignty, the crossing of United States soldiers into Mexican territory, General Canido Aguilar, minister of the interior, declared today in a formal statement issued at the Mexican embassy.

EL PASO, TEXAS, June 17.—Every border city, town and hamlet along the Rio Grande in this district is being garrisoned by detachments of American troops by General Erwin to prevent the possibility of a Villa raid across the border in retaliation for the capture of Villa's forces in Mexico.

Company G, 19th Infantry was ordered to El Paso, Texas, today Company H, of the same command, to Fabre, opposite Guadalupe, Chihuahua, and Company I, to Fort Hancock, Texas. In addition a machine gun platoon was ordered to Fabre.

Small patrols of troops will guard the border towns and the border west of El Paso has also been reinforced until the entire border front is under military guard.

Seven rugged Mexican prisoners were taken to the Fort Bliss stockade by a detachment of the fifth cavalry, called another cavalry detachment from a band of 100 captured Mexican horses and ponies to the remote station.

It was unofficially stated at Fort Bliss that approximately fifty Villa followers were killed.

One American of the seven cavalry, Corporal Chiles, was shot through the chest by a Mexican rebel.

The Ottoman representatives are here purely in the capacity of experts, and today's meeting was for the purpose of setting forth the Turkish situation to the conference.

The meeting was quite informal. The members of the council arrived one by one. The Turks were clad in conventional morning clothes and wore hats. The meeting which was a secret one, lasted an hour. At its close the Turkish representatives returned to Constantinople under escort.

The exact status of the mission was emphasized by its entering through an initiative and, moreover, supported by the members of the council.

German Delegates Depressed On Receipt Of Revised Treaty

WEIMAR, June 17.—(By the Associated press).—The new allied terms reached here late last night and the first apparent effect upon the German leaders who remained awake to wait for the terms was that of depression. A report passed rapidly through the old castle where the government heads are residing temporarily, that the signing of the peace terms by Germany was highly improbable.

No one would talk for publication, but every official and every member of the foreign office available expressed the deepest pessimism and resentment at the alleged cruelty of the terms.

The Germans were especially embittered over a report that a French mob had stoned the helpless German delegates at Versailles.

LONDON, June 17.—Seven members of the German cabinet favor signing the amended peace terms, while the other seven are opposed to signing, a Reuter dispatch from Berlin says.

PARIS, June 17.—Dr. Theodore Delboeur, one of the five principal delegates, and Frau Dorblush, one of the secretaries to the German peace delegation, were struck on the head with stones during a demonstration against the German delegates when they departed from Versailles last night.

The French government today expressed regret over the demonstration against the Germans. Premier Clemenceau is writing a letter of apology to Count Von Brockdorf-Bandau. It is reported that the prefect of police at Versailles may possibly be removed.

The demonstration had several phases but was confined mostly to jeering the Germans.

PARIS, June 17.—It was officially stated today that the full text of the revised draft of the German treaty would be made public Thursday. Copies of the document will be handed to the correspondents in Paris. The memorandum that was handed to the German plenipotentiaries yesterday was printed textually here this afternoon.

PEACE ENVOYS THINK GERMANY WILL REJECT IT

PARIS, June 17.—(Havas).—The majority of the members of the peace conference believe that Germany will not sign the peace treaty, according to Marcel Huin, of the Echo de Paris, who made a canvass of a number of leading personalities of the peace-making body. Only one of these leaders, M. Huin, declares, expressed the opinion that the Germans would accept the revised treaty. This member, however, is one whose opinion, the writer says, he holds in the greatest esteem.

PARIS, June 17.—Among the concessions contemplated for Germany in case she signs the peace treaty, it was learned today, is the use of 30 percent of her merchandise for two years. Other such concessions would be permitted for her to dispose of her gold reserve and to purchase the minerals and necessary for fueling her own iron ores.

PARIS, June 17.—The changes in the peace treaty handed to the Germans yesterday include:

- A plebiscite for Upper Silesia, with guarantee of coal from that territory.
- Frontier rectifications in West Prussia.
- Quelques of the third zone in the Schleswig plebiscite.
- Temporary increase of the German army from 100,000 to 200,000 men.
- Declaration of the intention to submit within a month of signature a list of those accused of violations of the laws and customs of war.
- Offer to co-operate with a German commission on reparations, and to receive suggestions for discharging obligation.
- Certain detailed modifications in the financial, economic and ports and waterways clauses, including abolition of the proposed Kiel canal commission.
- Assurance of membership in the League of Nations in the early future, if Germany fulfills her obligations.

WIND UP AUSTRIAN TREATY
PARIS, June 17.—The council of five met this afternoon and took up consideration of the remaining clauses in the peace treaty with Austria. The council likewise considered other matters requiring its attention before the departure of President Wilson tonight for his trip to Belgium.

PARIS, June 17.—The Germans have been granted an additional forty-eight hours in which to make their reply regarding the signing of the peace treaty.

The Germans are allowed five days to accept or refuse the treaty as it stands. If they accept, peace will be signed at once; if they do not accept, the armistice will terminate on Monday, June 23, at 6:45 p. m. Paris time, and the powers will take such steps as may be necessary to enforce their terms.

The principles of the original conditions have been vigorously upheld, as a peace of justice, but certain modifications in detail and many explanations of the effect of execution are made. The reply is in two parts—a general covering letter and discussions of the general counter-proposals.

Answers Germany's Objections
PARIS, Monday, June 17.—The detailed reply of the peace conference to the counter-proposals of the Germans, which was handed to the German delegation at Versailles today, takes up in the order of the objections made by the enemy to the provisions of the original peace treaty.

Among the modifications to the treaty which are accorded to by the conference are frontier rectifications for West Prussia, a plebiscite in upper Silesia, with a guarantee to Germany that she will receive fair treatment in securing mineral products from that region; modifications in the clauses relating to finance, economic and waterways phases of the treaty; permission for Germany to retain 200,000 in its army temporarily and a promise to furnish Germany within a month with a full list of the persons who are to be tried for responsibility for the great conflict and violations of the laws of war.

WAR LORDS BLAMED
Taking up the subject of penalties, the reply enters into a discussion of the immediate cause of the war, and says that the conflict was brought about through the decision, deliberately taken, of the statesmen of Berlin, Vienna and Budapest.

It is pointed out that even the German memorandum admits that Germany authorized Austria-Hungary to settle the Serbian question on her own initiative and, moreover, supported Austria's rejection of Serbia's "extraordinary concessions."

It is declared that Germany steadily rejected every proposal for a conference and did not urge moderation until all hope of avoiding war had vanished. German attempts to throw the blame on Russia, because of her mobilization of her army, it is pointed out, is invalidated by the fact that this mobilization was the immediate result of Austria's action.

WAR PREMEDITATED
"But the outbreak of the war," the reply says, "was no sudden decision taken in a difficult crisis. It was the logical outcome of policy of domination, aggression and war followed by Germany for decades. Hypnotized by Bismarck's spirit of blood and iron, Germany set about sowing suspicion and discord among the nations, conspiring with elements of unrest in every land, steadily increasing armaments and mobilizing the universities, press, pulpit and governmental authority to indoctrinate the people of hatred and force. The essential truth of these charges is admitted by the Germans themselves through their revolution."

"The war was a crime, deliberately plotted against the life and liberties of the people of Europe. It brought death and mutilation to millions, starvation, unemployment and disease stalked across the continent from end to end. The punishment of those responsible for the bringing on these calamities is essential on the score of justice."

CANNOT TRUST ACCUMPLICES
The reply asserts the powers cannot entrust the trial of those responsible to those who have been their accomplices.

The tribunals established for the trial of those under charges will represent the deliberate judgment of the greater part of the civilized world, and there can be no question of admitting the right of jurisdiction of representatives of countries which took no part in the war. The allies, it is declared, will stand by the verdict of history for the impartiality and justice with which the accused will be tried. The accused will be given full rights of defense and the judgment of the tribunal will have the most solemn judicial character. The allied and associated powers are prepared to submit a final district of those who must be handed over to justice within one month of the signing of the treaty.

GERMAN VIEW DISTORTED
The allied and associated powers refuse to enter into a discussion with the principles underlying the reparations clauses but certain observations are made, especially as the German proposals are said to "present a view so distorted and incorrect as to raise a question of its being taken into consideration."

NEAR BEER AND FRUIT JUICES ARE FAVORED

COLUMBUS, O., June 17.—An amendment legalizing the manufacture and sale of near beer and fruit juices containing not more than one-half of one percent of alcohol, was adopted today by the lower house of the legislature in considering the first of the two Crabb emergency prohibition enforcement bills. Indications were that the Crabb bills would be voted upon in the house late today.

While the house was considering prohibition legislation, the senate by a vote of 21 to 11, passed over Governor Cox's veto the cities financial relief bill. At a conference of Republican leaders this morning, it was decided not to accept the proposed compromise measure. It was stated that in case the house backs up the senate in passing the financial relief bill over the governor's veto that a new bill providing for a two mills levy for school outside the limitations of the Smith one percent law will be passed.

The senate and house yesterday ratified the federal woman's suffrage amendment and also passed a bill that would permit women to vote for presidential electors in 1920.

Near Beer, Fruit Juices Favored

The first Crabbe prohibition enforcement bill, which carries an emergency clause, seeks to make the present local option laws applicable throughout the entire state under the prohibition amendment. The other bill would extend the search and seizure laws. There was no indication whether the bills would be passed as emergency measures. Representative Crabbe stated on the floor that he understood an amendment would be offered to legalize the manufacture and sale of 2.31 percent beer.

Dry leaders announced that in case the Crabbe bills fail as emergency measures, they will be passed subject to referendum.

The amendment exempting near beer and fruit juices was offered by Representative Harter. Of Akron, Representative Crabbe in announcing his acceptance of it, said he did so under protest, but that he did not want to be rated as a radical prohibitionist that would not listen to any compromise suggestion.

An amendment offered by Representative Long, of Ottawa county, would have permitted the manufacture of grape juice with one percent of alcohol. This was defeated by a vote of 45 to 32. It is expected that many

Has Positive Cure For Flu And Pneumonia

NEW YORK, June 17.—Indigestion and pneumonia are no more to be feared than a bolt on the back of the neck, according to Dr. Charles M. Duncan, one of the founders of the volunteer hospital, who in an address here today, before the convention of the Allied Medical Association of America, described his method of combating Spanish influenza by means of "immunizing" a patient to his own virus.

Upon 240 patients ill with pneumonia and influenza last winter, Dr. Duncan said he had used the treatment "without a single fatality or any complications."

Briefly, the physician said, "I take one drachm of mucus from the infected area and pour it into a test tube of filtered water, where it remains several hours. One cubic centimeter of this mixture, injected subcutaneously, will effect a spontaneous cure of Spanish influenza, pneumonia, croup, or any similar lung infection. ## SOCIETY

An account of the wedding of Miss Sara McKeefe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. McKeefe, of Marion, formerly of this city, is given today, as taken from the Marion Daily Star:

"Miss Sara Elizabeth McKeefe and Mr. Paul Stark Bishop were united in marriage Sunday, June 8, at 11:30 o'clock, at the close of the service at the Trinity Baptist church, of which the bride's father, Dr. T. H. McKeefe, is the pastor. The wedding came as a pleasant surprise to the friends of the young people. After pronouncing the benediction, at the conclusion of his morning address, Dr. McKeefe invited the congregation to be seated, and while Miss Grace Duffee, the church organist, rendered "Love's Greeting," by Edgar, on the pipe organ, the bride and groom marched up the center aisle of the church, where they were met by Dr. McKeefe, who performed the double ring ceremony, uniting them in the holy bonds of wedlock.

"The bride was beautiful in a gown of white georgette crepe, with trimmings of white and blue, and blue and white bands of satin yellow and blue. She wore a lagoon hat trimmed with field flowers and carried an arm bouquet of gorgeous California margolds. The bride was attended by her sisters, Miss Rachel McKeefe, who wore a gown of blue and white voile, and Miss Mildred McKeefe, who wore a delicate pink voile. Both wore flower-trimmed lagoon hats and carried bouquets of snapdragons, with large white bows. The bride's tiny brides, Grace Jean Ferguson and Margaret Sellards, of Portsmouth, carried calla lilies, in which were concealed the wedding rings.

"The bride is one of the five daughters of Dr. and Mrs. McKeefe. During the past three years she has been employed as the sixth grade teacher at the Pearl street school building. "Mr. Bishop is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bishop, of Xenia. He came to Marion over two years ago and has charge of the Rubber store on south Main street.

"Following the marriage ceremony the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were entertained at a luncheon at the McKeefe home on South State street. A color-scheme of pink and white was observed and tiny candles were used in the decorations. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bishop, of Xenia; Mr. and Mrs. William Sellards and daughter Margaret; and Mr. and Mrs. J. Ferguson and daughter, Grace Jean, of Portsmouth; Dr. and Mrs. T. H. McKeefe, Misses Rachel and Mildred McKeefe and Mr. and Mrs. Paul S. Bishop.

"After a visit of several days with the groom's parents at Xenia, Mr. and Mrs. Bishop will return to this city, where they will reside with the bride's parents on South State street, for the present."

Interesting news to many local persons is that of the marriage of Miss Carolyn Ireland Haddox, daughter of the late Rev. L. C. Haddox, and Mr. James Gary Sawyer, of Highland county, which took place last Thursday at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Haddox, in Columbus. Rev. W. M. Hildebrand officiated. The groom is pastor of the Presbyterian church in Columbus. The late father of the bride was a former pastor of Bigelow M. E. church here.

The Foreign Missionary Society of the Franklin Avenue M. E. church will meet at the home of Mrs. F. L. Walling, 204 Waller street, Sunday, in a business and social session this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. David Parby, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Neal, Misses Eunice, Clara and Lucie Neal, Mary Dietrich and Margaret Wingo and Messrs. Cecil Willis, Thurman and Harry Darby, all of South Portsmouth motored to Sandy Falls, Greenup, Ky. Sunday and enjoyed the day pleasantly.

Miss Ella Vallance, of Third street, returned Sunday evening after a few days' visit with relatives in Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Kays, of Springfield, Mass., are in the city for a short visit with Mrs. John Kays, Sr., of Eleventh and Washington streets.

Mrs. Sarah Evans, of Manchester, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kakers, 1023 Third street.

as a fate worse than death—she is sold to a travelling circus as a dancing girl, and finds herself in the hands of a brutal master.

The story is vital and absorbing—following the life of this passionate and untamed girl of the desert. Later she becomes a member of the family of a man whose life she saves and becomes involved in the intrigue which is the life of the family.

All the passions of human nature are displayed in this stirring drama of Oriental and Occidental life—love, hate, jealousy, deceit, treachery and revenge—all have their turn in this gripping and amazing play. Nazimova rises to the heights of her superb emotional art in this glowing drama of the Far East.

The cast which surrounds the distinguished actress was carefully chosen by Mr. Capellani with a view to their real fitness for the several parts they were called upon to portray.

Charles Ray, the great English actor, is the leading man of the production and will be seen in the role of Captain Cadore, the French officer who falls in love with Hassouna, Douville Gallagher plays Duffin Arnauld and others of the cast are Sally Cruise, E. H. Fernandez, John Richard and Miriam Bartista, who plays the tiny sister of the star.

The play was translated from the original French by Mrs. Nina Lewton, a sister of Nazimova.

Thomas H. Ince presents
CHARLES RAY in "The Claws of the Hun"
A Paramount Picture

Charles Ray in Thrilling Photoplay "Claws of the Hun" at The Lyric Tomorrow Only.

That ever popular Paramount star, Charles Ray, who has a most congenial role in "The Claws of the Hun," is one of the most indefatigable screen players on the Pacific Coast, or anywhere else, for that matter. We have frequently mentioned Mr. Ray's cleverness as was amply evidenced by him in his recent Paramount picture, "His Own House Town," but it is a pleasure to state that in none of his recent successes has his art been displayed to finer advantage than in his portrayal of the patriotic son of a rich manufacturer of munitions in "The Claws of the Hun." He tests his characterization with a certain dash and vitality that should, and doubtless will, place him in the front rank of his character.

Mr. Ray is a rising screen star, a player of discriminating taste and his artistry is reinforced by intelligence and experience. Combining these qualities in his work with ever increasing energy, there is no telling where his advancement will cease. That he has done the best work of his career in his latest starring vehicle, and that his army of admirers will agree with this statement, are mathematical propositions no less obvious than that two and two makes four.

A new Mack Sennett comedy, "His Wife's Friend," is an added attraction.

DOROTHY GISH
in "Boots"
A Paramount Picture

Mouse At Feet! Was Dorothy Scared? See Miss Gish in "Boots"

Scene Not Arranged For During the Filming of Her New Photoplay

If you were a slave in a London boarding house, and your job was to take orders from everyone who had lodged there, and if one of the boarders ordered you to feel her pet mice, and you did, and one of them got out of the cage and ran right at you—well, now just what would you do?

That is the situation that confronted Dorothy Gish when "Boots," her newest Paramount picture, which is showing at the Lyric tonight, was being made at the Hollywood, Calif. studios. And to make matters worse, Miss Gish knew that the horrible camera was being turned every second and that all attempts she might make to get away from that mouse would be infidly registered on the film.

That had not been arranged for in the story, and it wasn't quite fair. Of course, she didn't think that all out during the moments when she was threatened by this tiny rodent running around loose on the stage, because she was trying to listen to Elmer Clifton, her director, and at the same time save herself from the fabulous beast, that insisted on getting itself under her feet every time it had the opportunity.

There were tables and chairs and other things in the room and Dorothy made good use of them. The mice, by the way, have a lot to do with the story, and when the scene was finished Miss Gish consented to go through a little more of the ordeal in order to have the whole thing in the picture. Miss Gish is splendidly supported in this photoplay. A new Mack Sennett comedy, "His Wife's Friend," is on the program also and is creating a gale of laughter.

At The Arrans Tonight:
Chapter fifteen of "The Man of the Hour" is showing tonight. "The Rescue" is the title of chapter 15 of this chapter play featuring William Desmond. Don't miss the concluding numbers of these thrilling serial plays at the Arrans. "Diplomatic Henry" is a two reel Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew comedy stream that is a real red "Smiling Throes" is a one reel Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran comedy.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS
in "He Comes Up Smiling"

New Fairbanks' Picture, "He Comes Up Smiling" at the Lyric, Thursday, Friday and Saturday

When it is said that Douglas Fairbanks is not only one of the best known and popular screen stars in the country, with superb talents for mimetic expression no less emphatic than his popularity wherever motion pictures are shown, it seems useless to amplify a perfectly obvious truth. But inasmuch as his performance in his latest Artcraft photoplay, "He Comes Up Smiling," is concerned, it must be said that it never has exceeded in quality and artistic effectiveness, by which his name has been associated in many circles. Gentility, optimism, cheerfulness and building humor are Mr. Fairbanks' middle names, and certainly, in the wide range of public entertainment, his sparkling personality remains in a sphere all its own. Mr. Fairbanks has been aptly termed the dare devil of the screen, and we venture to say that his daring stunts in his most stirring vehicle, in which he argues as a Chesterfieldian hero in whom every knight of the Round Table would find a peer, are not the least of his achievements. Mr. Fairbanks never has had a finer role and he never has given his admirers as much for their money as in "He Comes Up Smiling" offers them. It is a superb photoplay, remarkably acted, and its appeal will be infinitely irresistible.

THE MOVIES

NAZIMOVA in "EYE FOR EYE"

This Magnificent Super-Production in Seven Thrilling Acts at the Columbia Tonight Only

Nazimova, conceded to be the most fascinating and talented actress on the screen will be seen in a thrilling production "Eye for Eye," at the Columbia theatre tonight only. This play is a child drama of the Orient and the great star will be seen in the role of Hassouna, a girl of the desert.

The picture was taken from the famous play "L'Occident," written by the noted Belgian dramatist, Henry Kistemaekers, and adapted for the screen by June Mathis and Albert Capellani. Mr. Capellani, who is a distinguished French Director, made the production under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger.

The story is that of an Arabian girl, fiery and beautiful, who lives with her tribe in a city of tents on the edge of the desert. She takes a young French naval officer to their encampment and here he is made prisoner. Hassouna falls in love with him and releases him, later aiding in his escape. When the loss of the prisoner is discovered she confesses her help in his escape and for this act is commended to death. The Arabs abandoning her to the desert, she perishes from thirst and starvation.

The beautiful girl is rescued but fate under suspicion. Suppose you were a girl in love with one of these, and a button from his coat was found near the body. Suppose your lover even made a confession that he accidentally shot your father. Would you believe him guilty? This is the strange situation that confronts Virginia Pearson in her Fox production, "QUEEN OF HEAVENS," which is at the Temple tonight. Come and see how it is solved. An episode of "THE RED LOVER" will be shown also.

Automobiles Collide; Woman Painfully Hurt

Mrs. William Cole of Vernon, was bruised about the face and arms, Sunday evening when a Maxwell roadster driven by John Potts, of South Western, and a Maxwell touring car, driven by William Cole, collided at a crossroads near the village. The accident occurred at 7 o'clock, neither of the drivers having yet put on the machine lights.

The turn at the crossroads is very short, and neither of the motorists was able to see the other on account of the trees and shrubbery.

Mrs. Cole was accompanied by his wife and two small daughters. Miss Olive Adams and Mr. Potts were the only occupants of the roadster. For a time it was thought that the Cole baby was injured, but later it was found that it was only frightened.

The touring car suffered only slight damages, a fender being badly dented. The roadster had one wheel torn off, both fenders smashed, the steering gear bent, and one light shattered.

Out Of Army For Good

Private John Barrows, who was formerly employed here by J. F. Carr and R. J. Stuchlik has received his discharge from the army and is in the city on a short visit with friends. He is the guest of Sergeant Dick Gardner of East Portsmouth while here. Barrows' mother is now living in Williams, W. Va., with relatives, going to that place when her son answers the call to the colors. Barrows entered the service here.

He was home on a three days' furlough shortly after his arrival at Camp Merritt, and is now on his way home with his coveted discharge. Private Barrows expects to come to Portsmouth to work and he and Gardner will probably take employment in the N. and W. shops at East Portsmouth.

A SURPRISE IN STORE FOR HIM

RETURNED SOLDIERS FIND IT DIFFICULT TO GET JOB IN PORTSMOUTH, WILL YOU HELP THEM?

Only through co-operation can returning service men be placed speedily in jobs and this co-operation can be carried on through the United States Employment Bureaus by business men listing their open jobs with their local employment bureau. The service men when they are released from the camps and given discharges are told to apply for work through their local U. S. Employment Bureaus.

If all places where jobs are open and the jobs themselves are listed with the Employment Bureau then the placement of returning men is made easier and such cases as the following one of Hobson Parker would be avoided.

Captain R. H. Bachus emphasized this fact in the case of one soldier who came to the U. S. Employment Bureau, Chillicothe street, this afternoon to tell of his particular case in hunting work after returning from war. This man was Hobson Parker, who had lived here eight years before he enlisted. He served a year in foreign service, came back to his own home town among the first of returning soldiers and from the day he stepped into the city, February 20th to June 1st Parker hunted for a job in vain.

This is his story as told to Captain Bachus. If you had heard Parker, who is a fine, clean cut American tough boy, tell his story you would have been moved as was the Captain who knew what Parker as a soldier went through in the Argonne Forest where he was gassed in active service.

"Parker, I understand you had trouble finding a job," said Capt. Bachus in opening the conversation.

"Every place in the city. I went on my knees for work, Captain. I even went to the police station two or three times. I'd have taken anything."

And when the Captain asked him his military history and found he had been in the 32nd Division he said: "Why, boy, that's my division and showed his 120th Inf. insignia."

The following was the boy's story (He is married, by the way, having voluntarily enlisted in June 1917, patriotically leaving his wife to fight for the colors). In France he was a cook and in the Argonne having nothing to cook he took his gun and was up at the front in one of the most tragic battles of the war. It was here he was gassed and was taken back to a base hospital where with other American boys he lay gasping for air. After two months he returned to the front and was again in battle making a total of 12 months—one year—in actual service. Receiving his discharge in February 1919 he returned to his wife and started back to civilian life having served his flag in foreign fields.

Then followed the weary months of tramping the old home streets for a job.

"I got your goat, did it, Boy?" said the Captain.

"Yes, it got my goat. I became acutely hesitant about saying I was a returned soldier. No man had a job for a soldier," said Parker, in relating his story to the Captain.

Parker was an automobile mechanic before leaving for war. He finally got a job driving a truck on June first after looking for work since February. "I'm a married man too."

Captain Bachus is Field Representative of the War Department sent out by Col Arthur Wood who is assistant to Secretary of War Baker and also is chairman of the Soldiers' Emergency Employment Committee, Washington, D. C.

Capt. Bachus is here to assist the local U. S. Employment Bureau to find jobs for returned soldiers, sailors, marines and alphas.

"I'm not here on an investigating trip. I'm here to lend assistance in clearing up the situation for the boys who fought. They are coming back now after months abroad and they are wanting work and they should have it. It will kill Bolshevism and do away with any possibility of labor riots in this country as are occurring in London according to the press news of yesterday's paper," said the captain.

"Now the places where Parker tried did not have jobs open, no doubt, but it is to make a great effort to control the situation that the government established U. S. Employment offices. It is the only way to find jobs for the men. The statement of Mr. Parker merely goes to show why co-operation is necessary in dealing with the returned soldier proposition."

Reversing the Compliment.
A cashier of somewhat portly build was crowding over a statement of accounts just placed before him by his pretty typist. "As a young lady," he said, "I admire your type, but I can't honestly say I admire your typing."

"How funny!" she replied smartly. "We are so different, for though you are of course splendid at figures, no one could say you have a splendid figure."

Famous In A Day For Her Beautiful Complexion, Oatmeal Combination Does It.

New York: It is my own discovery and it takes just one night to get such wonderful results, says Miss Edith Wilder, when her friends ask her about her wonderful complexion and the improved appearance of her hands and arms. You can do the same thing if you follow my advice she says: I feel it my duty to tell you that I have found that this wonderful prescription did for me. I never tire of telling others just what brought about such remarkable results. Here is the formula: Prescription that removed every defect from my face, neck, hands and arms. Until you try it you can form no idea of the marvellous change it will make in just one application. The prescription which you can prepare at your own home is as follows: Get to any grocery and get ten cents worth of ordinary oatmeal and from any drug store a bottle of derwilt. Prepare the ointment as directed in every package of derwilt and apply night and morning. The first application will scratch you. It makes the skin appear transparent, smooth and velvety. I especially recommend it for freckles, tan, sun spots, coarse pores, rough skin, redness, wrinkles, and, in fact, every blemish the face, hands and arms are liable to. If your neck or chest is discolored from exposure apply this combination there and the objectionable defects will disappear. It is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate growth of hair. No matter how rough and unpeeling the hands and arms may be, if you use this combination of derwilt and oatmeal you will have had thorough hard work and exposure to sun and wind, this oatmeal-derwilt combination will work a wonderful transformation in a few hours at the most. Thousands who have used it have had the same results I have had.

Note: To get the best effect be sure to follow the complete directions contained in every package of derwilt. You will have only to get derwilt and oatmeal. You need nothing else and it is so simple that any woman can use it. It is so inexpensive that any girl or woman can afford it. The manufacturers and druggists guarantee that there will be a noticeable improvement after the first application or they will refund the money. It is sold in thirty-four different foreign countries, by the Department of Agriculture and all up-to-date druggists including Froot & Blake and T. H. Davis.

HASTENED THEIR OWN DEFEAT

ON the Allied side it was unanimously agreed by the military authorities that the defeat of the Germans would not be accomplished before 1920, but then it would be certain.

Germany herself hastened the glorious end by almost two years. Though all the time exploiting to her own people her contempt of the part America was playing and could play in the war, her generals were alarmed at the vigor and effect with which she was prosecuting her efforts and must have concluded that only an early and supreme effort could win for them. With this in mind they launched, and it would also seem altogether unexpectedly, their mighty offensive of March, 1918. They rolled back the French and English before them. Paris and the channel ports, and so England herself, became seriously imperiled. Pausing for a brief spell they again launched out and the world shuddered at the near approach of the fall of the French capital, a fall that would have spelled disaster to the Allies and all the world, as it would have divided the French and English armies and left the American troops practically no where to make a successful stand. It was then that the Allies called on America to move up. First a handful of four thousand, then a hundred thousand and in gradually increasing numbers till a good million stood in the trenches, with as many more at hand for relief. Then, too, was made evident the mighty preparations America had made. For she had not only organized and transported over two million fighting men, but she had sent the proper equipment with them. American courage, American guns, American shells met the Huns and played prodigally against them.

What came of that we all know, and the world is safe. As one America stood then. Because her people so stood her sons came sailing home, welcomed and honored as conquering heroes.

What a pity, though, that no sooner had they, with united backing from home, vanquished our enemies and the enemies of all the earth, than we fell into strife and contention and every matter and every purchase must become the plaything of politics and the bone of partisanship.

THE LIMIT EXPECTED OF US

SHORTLY after this country declared a state of war existed between Germany and itself, men high in connection with the military affairs on the European continent came over.

Of course, these had as their prime object to learn what America expected to do in a fighting way and what it was hoped she would do. Everybody wanted to know what was the conclusion of our government and the visitors, but that was a war matter and, of course, no hint of it became public, during actual hostilities. Now, however, it is gradually being let out and it is curiously interesting.

For instance, at a dinner in his honor in New York, Secretary of War Baker partially lifted the veil of secrecy and told his hosts when General Joffre was over here he expressed a supreme desire that America would send over at once such trained soldiers as she could possibly spare, to encourage the French people, who as well might sink to hopelessness and later on increase to an army of four hundred thousand. It might even be possible, he urged, to raise that number as high as a half million.

General Foch was here in May, 1917. In a year and a month from that time the United States had two million fighting men in France. In June, 1918, almost as many men were sent over as General Joffre hoped might be our maximum strength.

From that we may take some measure of our marvelous achievements. General Joffre had been in supreme command of the French forces and is esteemed one of the greatest soldiers of modern times. Familiar with the capacities of other countries, he judged what it would be reasonable in America to do. Not alone his estimates, but his fondest expectations were quadrupled. Yes, far more than that because all the experts agreed the knock out blow could not come before 1920, though it was given in 1918.

There are two farms in Seoto county that we know of equipped with ice making machines. Things like these show the agricultural development that is going on.

Lucasville has the largest pig club in the county. There are others though that say the size of the club hasn't anything to do with the size of the pig to be raised.

Only one had auto smash up Sunday. That shows a trifle of improvement, or was it just luck.

The crown prince of Roumania, crossed in love, attempted suicide by shooting himself in the leg. He mistook where his brains were located, not having any.

MISS EVERETT, CLEVER ACTRESS, IS ALSO NIFTY MECHANIC; LOOKS AFTER OWN MACHINE

The signing of the armistice found many willing workers stranded on this side of a patriotic goal and among those who had received their passports for foreign service was Miss Everett, leading lady with the Cooper-Morris Stock Company, now playing at the Millbrook Park Casino, who had been originally for the motor and ambulance driver corps. Miss Everett was also proficient as a left-side stenographer, and, of course, was competent to be an entertainer.

Miss Everett is as clever with her automobile as she is on the stage, which is saying a lot. She tests her batteries, grinds her grease cups, and even tears the motor down and puts it together again.

All this would be a pleasing exhibition for Miss Everett wears jumper overalls and a mechanic's cap when she works and all her blonde beauty gets smeared with grease, though her

THE WISHING PLANE

Jack heard many an interesting story from the soldiers at Verdun, but the one that thrilled him most was told by a real young boy.

He couldn't have been much more than out of school, Jack thought, for he was still just a lad. And this is the story that he told, as near as I can recall it.

The French and German armies had been battling for days in that neighborhood. The air was just full of giant shells. Airplanes buzzed overhead. Once in awhile every one was made deathly sick by smelling some of the poisonous gases used in the fighting. Dispatch riders on motor-cycles dashed back and forth over the road delivering messages to different parts of the French army.

A dispatch rider, you know, has the most dangerous job of anyone. He must carry orders to any part of the battlefield, no matter how terrible the fighting may be. The enemy tries hard to shoot him, so that word he is taking will fall to reach the officers, and perhaps fall into the hands of the enemy.

De Bois, for that was the boy's name, had carried the message carriers, even though their work was dangerous. He could ride a motor-cycle himself, and had tried to enlist, but the officers had told him that he was too young.

Two or three times during the day De Bois had helped some of the soldier riders repair their machines when they had broken down near his house on their way to and from the front line. Once he had helped bandage the wounds of one of the men.

The wounded rider told him how he had been carrying orders for two days and a night from the headquarters to the most important part of the line without taking time to rest or eat, let alone sleep. He could have had rest, but knew that a new rider would have a hard time finding the road and locating the officers, so stuck to his work.

Late in the day De Bois saw him come again, bound from headquarters to the front. As he neared the house, De Bois saw his machine wobble and fall. When the French lad reached the side of the fallen rider, he found that the soldier had been wounded again, this time through the chest, and that he had become unconscious while trying to continue his work.

De Bois brought him some water and finally revived him. The rider opened his eyes, and when he saw who it was, managed to say, "You must take these orders to General Jules. Keep this road for five miles, turn to your left at the cross road and on through the heavy timber. You will find him on the side of the hill. You must not fail."

Then the rider collapsed again. De Bois carried the soldier into his house, laid him on the bed, made him as comfortable as he could and then ran out to the machine. It took him but a minute or two to examine the engine and find out that it had been injured by the fall. He started the motor running and leaped astride the motorcycle.

I will tell you tomorrow about his careful ride.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAY'S NEWS

SENATOR PENROSE

Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania, who is now solidly settled in the chairmanship of the immensely important finance committee, has many political enemies in the upper house, but so far as personal relations go, the most of his colleagues like him.

Concerning the Penrose personality there has been built up in many minds a curious misconception of the man. Perhaps it is because he is physically so huge. He stands 6 feet 4 inches and weighs close to 300. He is big and burly, and a great many people have received the idea that he is a crude, coarse, uncouth, overbearing political boss, of a type common in many large cities, whose success is largely due to sheer physical force.

Penrose is anything but crude. He is not uncouth. He does not look "smart," perhaps because he is so ponderous. But he has one of the keenest minds in the senate and one of the sharpest wits. There are few men who can arouse as much laughter in the senate as Penrose when he chooses to go about it. He can trace his ancestry for five hundred years and in his veins flows the blood of some of the most distinguished American families. He looks anything but aristocratic, but he can lay claim to aristocratic lineage if he wishes. There are four Penrose brothers living, of whom he is one, and all of them are in "Who's Who."

When Theodore Roosevelt was a senior at Harvard, Penrose was in the class behind him. When Penrose graduated in the following year he ranked second man in his class. The reason that he failed to stand first was that his brother, Dr. Charles B. Penrose, beat him for that honor. They stood No. 1 and No. 2 in the class of 1881. Two other Penrose boys, Richard and Spencer, are also Harvard graduates. They are mining engineers. Penrose not only was a diligent student at Harvard, but he has kept it up ever since. Not many men in the senate are so well read as the boss of Pennsylvania. He not only knows politics from its practical side, but he is a student of theories.

Any man who thinks he can outguess Penrose with "high brow" views and opinions is making a mistake. Penrose can talk "high brow" with almost any of them. Also, he can get down to cases and talk straight practical politics without moralization. The Penrose genealogy is so long that there isn't room to say much about it. The family is of Welsh origin. A Richard Penrose was sheriff of Cornwall in the sixteenth century, showing that Boies comes naturally by his political bent. There have been good and bad preachers among the Welsh Penroses. The senator's great-grandfather, James Penrose, was described by Benjamin Franklin in an obituary notice as an eminent ship-builder. The Penrose family is linked with that of the Pennsylvania Riddles. On his mother's side, Penrose inherits New England Puritan blood. He is also related through his mother to the famous family of Maryland and the Deslers of Massachusetts. When you come to trace Penrose to his source you run across a whole lot of famous American names. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, a New England puritan who looks it, has nothing on Penrose when it comes to ancestry.

And now Boies Penrose is chairman of the great finance committee of the senate and the right against him is rapidly becoming only memory. Senator Francis Smith in his open conference "it doesn't matter a continental damn who is chairman." That's the way it looks to the Republicans in the senate today. What the finance committee does will count a lot, but the fact that Penrose is chairman of it is not expected to cut much figure in politics, unless Penrose bends the job.

Over at Ft. Lee and other motion picture studios they have a new type. He is called the "Lone Loner." Generally he is a broken down actor who hangs around the studio for a small fee. Just a small part that makes a dollar or so and quell the insistent murrings of a heartless land-lady.

When Hon. Ex-Edition Cole, Fluker declared that the Germans were morally obligated to let Hankley said it was just what we needed. "I'm old prices 'll just return no questions 'll be asked."

JUST KEEP IT UP!

I WILL SING YOU A SONG OF OHIO

By Stephen S. Bonbright

I will sing you a song of Ohio.

The fair seventeenth state of our land.

The state which is mother of Presidents.

And whose sons are both loyal and grand.

It is proud of its beautiful women.

Her daughters are both loving and true.

And throughout its domain merry children

In each day gladden our hearts anew.

I will sing you a song of Ohio.

The most wonderful state and the best.

With its picturesque hills and meek valleys.

Here joyful sun-kissed rivers in

Her waters bear good fish in abundance.

Migrate birds breed in secluded nooks.

While the wildwood is decked with sweet flowers

Which seem to garland each rippling brook.

I will sing you a song of Ohio.

I will praise her again and again.

From her beautiful homes on the hill-

To the dear cottage down in the glens.

All the people are both proud and

Kind and true as the bright stars

What makes homes so dear in old

Ohio.

Is contentment—with thrift, peace and love!

I will sing you a song of Ohio.

Let glad hosannas the welkin ring.

Where each fair daughter is born a princess.

And each son is a sovereign king.

To where the nation turns to seek comet.

Or seek warriors strong and brave.

When assailed is our national honor.

For old Ohio's true sons rush to save!

I will sing you a song of Ohio.

With our emblem, Old Glory, on

The pride of the American nation—

"Eats off there stranger, as you pass by!"

We will stand for a lot of bad usage.

There is much we pass by and forget.

But you must deal square with Ohio.

Or else get out and go elsewhere to live!

YOU HAVE HAD TIME TO THINK IT OVER

All these years that you have helped somebody else to pay for a house, what have you gained out of it?

For that is just what you have been doing when you paid rent.

Somebody else has paid for a property out of Your money.

Otherwise people would not build houses to rent.

Think of Your Own Interest

Meantime, what have you gained from it?

Isn't it about time you were thinking of your own interest?

Here are the facts:

Every one who rents a house must get ten per cent on the cost if he expects to come out even.

Save Your Money

A house that cost $3000 must rent for $25 a month to pay the landlord. Most of them rent for more just now.

If you bought such a property for $3000 and paid $1000 down you would pay the rest out at the rate of $20 a month. At the end of the first year you would have paid $60 interest to yourself on the $1000 and $240 to the mortgagee, or just what you would pay for rent.

Suppose your taxes were $50. To offset that the very first year you would have an equity of $121 paid off on the mortgage, and would be a winner by $71.

Less Than Rent!

Actually, it costs you less to live in your own home than it does to rent—for your depreciation need never equal the gain you make on the mortgage.

Nor need you limit yourself to the payment of a thousand. A man with one-tenth to pay down, and a reputation for reliability can own his home in Portsmouth.

You Might Own This

Portsmouth

Needs 1000 more homes right now.

If they are not built how many will it need when a single year's increase of population comes—3500 more people?

Where will rent be then?

Important Notice

(Cut This Out)

If you are contemplating the erection of a new home and desire any information as to financial assistance, kindly fill out the following and address it to William Harris, secretary of the Board of Trade:

More To It

But the mere fact that you are better off financially is not all there is to owning your home.

Whether you believe it or not, the greatest thing about owning your home is the self-respect it brings to you and your family. Every wife has a right to expect the man of her choice to provide a place that is her own, and while she may not say much about it, deep in her heart is the hope—the home longing—that some day she can hold up her head with others and proudly point to her home.

A Message to You

Then the kiddies—are you going to keep them paying tribute to somebody for the right to live?

Their welfare—your wife's happiness—your own self-respect—all these carry the message to you to own your home.

Think about it. Think about it well, but don't stop at that. It may take courage, it may call for self-sacrifice—but it is well worth all it costs.

Make up your minds to better yourself by home ownership.

Come In and Ask

If you do not know, come in and let us tell you. You have had plenty of time to think it over. Now act. We have nothing for sale at headquarters, and no scheme for you to enter into, simply a sincere desire to help you decide to build for your advantage and for Portsmouth.

GERMANS GIVEN UNTIL MONDAY TO SIGN OR REJECT PEACE TREATY

ONLY MINOR CHANGES IN TREATY; GERMANY PLAYED FOR ACTIONS

Changes In The Treaty

PARIS, June 17.—The changes in the peace treaty handed to the Germans yesterday include:

A plebiscite for Upper Silesia, with guarantees of coal from that territory.

Frontier rectifications in West Prussia.

Abolition of the third zone in the Schleswig plebiscite.

Temporary increase of the German army from 100,000 to 200,000 men.

Declaration of the intention to submit within a month of signature a list of those accused of violation of the laws and customs of war.

Offer to co-operate with a German commission on reparations, and to receive suggestions for discharging obligation.

Certain detailed modifications in the financial, economic and ports and waterways clauses, including abolition of the proposed Kiel canal commission.

Assurance of membership in the League of Nations in the early future, if Germany fulfills her obligations.

PARIS, June 17.—The Germans have been granted an additional forty-eight hours in which to make their reply regarding the signing of the peace treaty.

The Germans are allowed five days to accept or refuse the treaty as it stands.

If they accept, peace will be signed at once; if they do not accept, the armistice will terminate on Monday, June 23, at 6:19 p. m. Paris time, and the powers will take such steps as may be necessary to enforce their terms.

The principles of the original conditions have been vigorously upheld, as a peace of justice, but certain modifications in detail and many explanations of the effort of execution are made. The reply is in two parts: a general covering letter and discussion of the general counter-proposals.

Answers Germany's Objections

PARIS, Monday, June 16.—The detailed reply of the peace conference to the counter-proposals of the Germans, which was handed to the German delegation at Versailles today, takes up in its order each of the objections made by the enemy to the provisions of the original peace treaty.

Among the modifications to the treaty which are accorded to by the conference are frontier rectifications for West Prussia, a plebiscite in upper Silesia, with a guarantee to Germany that she will receive fair treatment in securing mineral products from that region; modifications in the clauses relating to finance, economic and waterways phases of the treaty; permission for Germany to retain 200,000 in its army temporarily and a promise to furnish Germany within a month with a full list of the persons who are to be tried for responsibility for the great conflict and violations of the laws of war.

WAR LORDS BLAMED

Taking up the subject of penalties, the reply enters into a discussion of the immediate causes of the war, and says that the conflict was brought about through the "decision, deliberately taken, of the statesmen of Berlin, Vienna and Budapest."

It is pointed out that even the German memorandum admits that Germany authorized Austria-Hungary to settle the Serbian question on her own initiative and, moreover, supported Austria's rejection of Serbia's "extraordinary concessions."

It is declared that Germany steadily rejected every proposal for a conference and did not urge moderation until all hope of avoiding war had vanished. German attempts to throw the blame on Russia because of her mobilization of her army, it is pointed out, is invalidated by the fact that this mobilization was the immediate result of Austria's action.

WAR PREMEDITATED

"That the outbreak of the war," the reply says, "was no sudden decision taken in a difficult crisis. It was the logical outcome of policy of domination, aggression and war followed by Germany for decades. Hypnotized by Bismarck's spirit of blood and iron, Germany set about sowing suspicion and discord among the nations, conspiring with elements of unrest in every land, steadily increasing armaments and undermining the universities, press, pulpit and governmental authority to intensify the spirit of hatred and force. The essential truth of these charges is admitted by the Germans themselves through their revolution."

"The war was a crime, deliberately plotted against the life and liberties of the people of Europe. It brought death and mutilation to millions. Starvation, unemployment and disease stalk across the continent from end to end. The punishment of those responsible for the bringing on these calamities is essential on the score of justice."

CANNOT TRUST ACCOMPLICES

The reply asserts the powers cannot "outcast the trait of those responsible to those who have been their accomplices."

"The tribunals established for the trial of those under charges will render the deliberate judgment of the greater part of the civilized world, and there can be no question of admitting the right of jurisdiction of representatives of countries which took no part in the war. The allies, it is declared, will stand by the verdict of history for the impartiality and justice with which the accused will be tried. The accused will be insured full rights of defense and the judgment of the tribunal will have the most solemn judicial character. The allied and associated powers are prepared to submit a final district of justice within one month of the date of the treaty."

GERMAN VIEW DISTORTED

The allied and associated powers refuse to enter into a discussion with the principles underlying the reparations clauses but certain observations are made, especially as the German proposals are said to "present a view so distorted and ineffectual as to raise a doubt if the charges were calmly and carefully examined."

The problem of reparations is of such extraordinary magnitude and complexity that it can be solved only by a continuing body, limited in per-

AMERICAN TROOPS ARE BACK ACROSS THE BORDER

EL PASO, Texas, June 17.—American troops that participated in the punitive expedition against the Villa rebels in and near Juarez yesterday were billeted in barracks and camps on the American side today after 23 hours of campaigning.

Seven negro Mexican prisoners were taken to the Fort Bliss stockade by a detachment of the fifth cavalry, while another cavalry detachment drove a herd of 100 captured Mexican horses and ponies to the remount station.

It was unofficially stated at Fort Bliss that approximately fifty Villa followers were killed.

One American of the seven cavalry, Corporal Clages, was shot through the lung by a Mexican rebel.

OHIO SOLONS RATIFY THE SUFFRAGE AMENDMENT

COLUMBUS, O., June 17.—With the federal woman suffrage amendment ratified and a bill passed that would permit women to vote for presidential elections in 1920, legislative leaders were planning to recess today until after the November election.

The Cripple prohibition enforcement bills are expected to come up for passage today. It is understood that dry leaders may accept the latter amendment, defining intoxicating liquors as those containing more than one half of one percent of alcohol, in order to obtain sufficient support to pass them as emergency measures. This would permit the manufacture and sale of "near beer."

Before recessing Republican leaders are expected to attempt to enact a financial relief bill for schools that would permit an extra two mills levy outside the Smith one percent law limitations. Republican members of the joint session directed the attorneys to prepare such a measure which will be introduced today. Few Democrats are expected to support the bill, which they declare is a purely partisan measure.

An effort also is expected to be made today to pass the financial relief bill, which Governor Cox vetoed, over his disapproval. This could not be done yesterday, as a number of Republican members of the house were absent. The absentees were instructed last night by the sergeant-at-arms over the telephone to be present today.

On Summer Schedule

The local N. & W. ticket office, on Sixth street, will close at 1 p. m. on Saturday through the summer and at 3 p. m. through the winter as a result of an order issued by N. & W. officials Monday.

BANISHED FROM TOLEDO BY JUDGE KILLITS

TOLEDO, June 17.—Federal Judge Killits Monday noon ordered the banishment from the city of Alex Schwartzkopf, secretary of the Workers' Soldiers' and Sailors' council.

The court told Schwartzkopf to leave the city by Tuesday morning, adding that the penalty for non-compliance would be a citation for contempt of court.

Schwartzkopf replied that he would not act until after consulting his attorney, J. A. Kavaney and T. F. Wright, members of the council, were warned to change their conduct if they wish to stay in Toledo. Kavaney had spoken to a crowd at Lagrange street and Central avenue Sunday.

The judge also informed John Quinn, business agent of the Central Labor Union, to warn "Pittsburgh" John Henderson, general organizer of the International Association of Machinists, to cease his alleged incendiary activities in this community.

Henderson addressed workers in Willis park Sunday when Quinn cautioned him against remarks reflecting upon Judge Killits. Henderson left Toledo Sunday night.

Indictments against four alleged participants in the riot at the Willis-Overland company plant, in which two were killed and a score injured, were returned late yesterday by the federal grand jury. The men are charged with having stoned a special investigator for the government.

STRIKE LEADERS ARE ARRESTED

WINNIPEG, June 17.—Ten strike leaders were arrested in their homes here early today and transported in automobiles to some place in the country, presumably Stornay Mountain, by government police officials. Other arrests are reported to have been made in Calgary and other western points at the same time.

The official list of the persons arrested includes R. B. Russell, the Rev. William Evans, R. E. Bray, George W. and windows during the raid.

Simultaneously with the arrests of the strike leaders, the royal northwest mounted police raided the labor temple from which the strike has been conducted. Considerable literature, said to be of a Bolshevik nature, was seized. The police broke down doors and windows during the raid.

HASTENED THEIR OWN DEFEAT

ON the Allied side it was unanimously agreed by the military authorities that the defeat of the Germans would not be accomplished before 1920, but then it would be certain.

Germany herself hastened the glorious end by almost two years. Though all the time exploiting to her own people her contempt of the part America was playing and could play in the war, her generals were alarmed at the vigor and effect with which she was prosecuting her efforts and must have concluded that only an early and supreme effort could win for them. With this in mind they launched, and it would also seem altogether unexpectedly, their mighty offensive of March, 1918. They rolled back the French and English before them. Paris and the channel ports, and so England herself, became seriously imperiled. Pausing for a brief spell they again launched out and the world shuddered at the near approach of the fall of the French capital, a fall that would have spelled disaster to the Allies and all the world, as it would have divided the French and English armies and left the American troops practically no where to make a successful stand. It was then Poch called on America to move up. First a handful of four thousand, then a hundred thousand and in gradually increasing numbers till a good million stood in the trenches, with as many more at hand for relief. Then, too, was made evident the mighty preparations America had made. For she had not only organized and transported over two million fighting men, but she had sent the proper equipment with them. American courage, American guns, American shells met the Hun and played prodigally against them.

What came of that we all know, and the world is safe. As one America stood then, because her people so stood her sons came sailing home, welcomed and honored as conquering heroes.

What a pity though, that no sooner had they, with united backing from home, vanquished our enemies and the enemies of all the earth, than we fell into strife and contention and every matter and every purchase must become the plaything of politics and the bone of partisanship.

THE LIMIT EXPECTED OF US

SHORTLY after this country declared a state of war existed between Germany and itself, men high in connection with the military affairs on the European continent came over.

Of course, these had as their prime object to learn what America expected to do in a fighting way and what it was hoped she would do. Everybody wanted to know what was the conclusion of our government and the visitors, but that was a war matter and, of course, no hint of it became public, during actual hostilities. Now, however, it is gradually being let out and it is consumingly interesting.

For instance, at a dinner in his honor in New York, Secretary of War Baker partially lifted the veil of secrecy and told his hosts when General Joffre was over here he expressed a supreme desire that America would send over at once such trained soldiers as she could possibly spare, to encourage the French people, who had well nigh sunk to hopelessness and later on increase to an army of four hundred thousand. It might even be possible, he urged, to raise that number as high as a half million.

General Poch was here in May, 1917. In a year and a month from that time the United States had two million fighting men in France. In June, 1918, almost as many men were sent over as General Joffre hoped might be our maximum strength.

From that we may take some measure of our marvelous achievements. General Joffre had been in supreme command of the French forces and is esteemed one of the greatest soldiers of modern times. Familiar with the capacities of other countries, he judged what it would be reasonable in America to do. Not alone his estimates, but his fondest expectations were quadrupled. Yes, far more than that because all the experts agreed the knock out blow could not come before 1920, though it was given in 1918.

There are two farms in Scioto county that we know of equipped with ice making machines. Things like these show the agricultural development that is going on.

Lateville has the largest pig club in the county. There are others though that say the size of the club hasn't anything to do with the size of the pig to be raised.

Only one bad auto smash up Sunday. That shows a trifle of improvement, or was it just luck.

The crown prince of Roumania, cradled in love, attempted suicide by shooting himself in the leg. He mistook where his brains were located, not having any.

MISS EVERETT, CLEVER ACTRESS, IS ALSO NIFTY MECHANIC; LOOKS AFTER OWN MACHINE

The signing of the armistice found many willing workers stranded on this side of a patriotic goal and among those who had received their passports for foreign service was Miss Everett, leading lady with the Cooper-Morris Stock Company, now playing at the Millbrook Park Casino, who had passed creditably for the motor and ambulance driver corps. Miss Everett was also proficient as a bell-ringer, and, of course, was competent to be an entertainer.

Miss Everett is as clever with her automobile as she is on the stage, which is saying a lot. She tests her batteries, grinds her grease caps, and even tears the motor down and puts it together again.

All this would be a pleasing exhibition for Miss Everett wears jumper overalls and a technician's cap when she works and all her blonde tresses are smeared with grease, though her

THE WISHING PLANE

Jack heard many an interesting story from the soldiers at Verdun, but the one that thrilled him most was told by a real young boy.

He couldn't have been much more than out of school, Jack thought, for he was still just a lad. And this is the story that he told, as near as I can recall it.

The French and German armies had been battling for days in that neighborhood. The air was just full of giant shells. Airplanes buzzed overhead. Once in awhile every one was made deathly sick by smelling some of the poisonous gases used in the fighting. Dispatch riders on motorcycles dashed back and forth over the road delivering messages to different parts of the French army.

A dispatch rider, you know, has the most dangerous job of anyone. He must carry orders to any part of the battlefield, no matter how terrible the fighting may be. The enemy tries hard to shoot him, so that word he is taking will fail to reach the officers and perhaps fall into the hands of the enemy.

Do lots, for that was the boy's name, had carried the message carriers, even though their work was dangerous. He could ride a motorcycle himself, and had tried to enlist, but the officers had told him that he was too young.

Two or three times during the day the boys had helped some of the soldiers repair their machines when they had broken down near his house on their way to and from the front line. Once he had helped bandage the wounds of one of the men.

The wounded rider told him how he had been carrying orders for two days and a night from the headquarters to the most important part of the line without taking time to rest or eat, but alone sleep. He could have had rest, but knew that a new rider would have a hard time finding the road and locating the officers, so stuck to his work.

Late in the day Do lots saw him come again, bound from headquarters to the front. As he neared the house, he saw his machine wobble and fall. When the French had reached the side of the fallen rider, he found that the soldier had been wounded again, this time through the chest, and that he had become unconscious while trying to continue his work.

Do lots brought him some water and finally revived him. The rider opened his eyes, and when he saw who it was, he began to say, "You must take these orders to General Jules. Keep this road for five miles, turn to your left at the cross road and on through the heavy timber. You will find him on the side of the hill. You must not fail."

Then the rider collapsed again. Do lots carried the soldier into his house, laid him on the bed, made him as comfortable as he could and then ran out to the machine.

It took him but a minute or two to examine the engine and find out that it had been smothered by the fall. He started the motor running and leaped astride the motorcycle.

I will tell you tomorrow about his wonderful ride.

NEW YORK DAY-BY-DAY

NEW YORK, June 17.—Greenwich Village has now become a part of the plain New York. The opening of the Seventh Avenue subway extension and the direct thoroughfare to penetrate the residential backwater. A subway station has sprouted in Sheridan Square and rents are climbing.

The cars and studios are being deserted to escape the high rents. Dozens have started on a haphazard hunt for a new home in the West. Already Tim Tim, who used to sell soap canisters in a volunteer fireman's workshop, has gone to New Jersey. But Tim and his wife made their pile and own a home and everything. Their case is not symptomatic; merely interesting.

It was Greenwich Village's own fault that people began to rush there. The artists who clustered too thickly about their garrets and ball bedrooms about the simplicity of existence in the vicinity of the Art Deco south end of the Fifth Avenue line. A swarm of creatures who held jobs began to beseech the real estate offices. Washington Square is becoming fashionable. Right this minute, E. H. Southern and wife Julia Marlowe, are seeking a permanent home on the Square.

All of the "village misfits"—as they call themselves—are looking for across the river or upriver. Then Dickerman's Platte Den, across the square from Polly's, was formerly prosperous. It was a dark, dank basement and it had stunts there calculated to open the purses of jaded thrill chasers from the hinterland.

All around the Platte Den were other places such as the Vermilion House, the Purple Pup and the Camouflage. The police—who know nothing of the influence of art-chores on criminalism in literature—swooped down in their lawless way and closed the Platte Den. Other raids followed. The Village was being made more respectable. Then came the subway and then high rents. And now Bohemia is no more.

The other day I was down in Sheridan Square. There was no policeman in front of Dickerman's Den. The doors are falling in. Some were with a first-hand knowledge of rooftop has polished on the face of the adjoining vacant building: "Blue Diamond Terrace." There are no short skirted girls running around in snowsuits. I saw several baby carriages and no one seemed to know where baby buggies had gone.

The street scenes in Oriental New York just now are most interesting. Since the local Jewish doughboys have returned from the war a new interest is shown in Jerusalem. The City of Zion for which they actually fought for and helped to free. The penny press show men has put in a new line of Palestine views and does a flourish.

WHO'S WHO

IN THE DAYS NEWS

SENATOR PENROSE

Senator John Penrose, of Pennsylvania, who is now sitting in the chairmanship of the immensely important finance committee, has many political enemies in the upper house, but so far as personal relations go, the most of his colleagues like him.

Concerning the Penrose personality there has been built up in many minds a curious misconception of the man. Perhaps it is because he is physically so large. He stands 6 feet 4 inches and weighs close to 300 lbs. He is big and burly, and a great many people have considered the idea that he is a crude, coarse, uncouth, overbearing political boss, of a type common in many large cities, whose success is largely due to sheer physical force.

Penrose is anything but crude. He is not uncouth. He does not look "sauntty," perhaps because he is so well-dressed. But he has one of the keenest minds in the senate and one of the sharpest wits. There are few men who can arouse as much laughter in the senate as Penrose when he chooses to go about it. He can trace his ancestry for five hundred years and in his veins flows the blood of some of the most distinguished American families. He looks anything but aristocratic, however, if he wishes. There are four Penrose brothers living, of whom he is one, and all of them are in "Who's Who."

They have achieved something on their own account. When Theodore Roosevelt was a senator at Harvard, Penrose was in the class behind him. When Penrose graduated in the following year he ranked second in his class. The reason that he failed to stand first was that his brother, Dr. Charles R. Penrose, beat him for that honor. They stood No. 1 and No. 2 in the class of 1887. Two other Penrose boys, Richard and Spencer, are also Harvard graduates. They are mining engineers. Penrose not only was a diligent student at Harvard, but he has kept it up ever since. Not many men in the senate are so well read as the boss of Pennsylvania.

He not only knows politics from his practical side, but is a student of theories. Any man who thinks he can "sneak" through with "high brow" ideas and opinions is making a mistake. Penrose can talk "high brow" with almost any of them. Also, he can get down to cases and talk straight practical politics without moralization.

The Penrose genealogy is so long that there isn't room to say much about it. The family is of Welsh origin. A Richard Penrose was sheriff of Cornwall in the sixteenth century, showing that Wales comes naturally to his political bent. There have been Penroses with "high brow" ideas and opinions among the Welsh. Penrose.

The senator's greatest grandfather, James Penrose, was described by Benjamin Franklin in an obituary notice as an eminent shipbuilder. The Penrose family is linked with that of the Pennsylvania Biddles. On his mother's side, Penrose inherits New England Puritan blood. He is also related through his mother to the Chees family of Maryland and the Daughters of Massachusetts. When you come to trace Penrose to his sources, you can across a whole lot of famous American names. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, a New England patriot who looks it, has nothing on Penrose when it comes to ancestry.

And now John Penrose is chairman of the great finance committee of the senate and the fight against him is rapidly becoming only memory. Senator Penrose said in his own conference, "It doesn't matter a continental damn who is chairman." That's the way it looks in the Republican in the senate today. What the finance committee does will count a lot, but the fact that Penrose is chairman of it is not expected to cut much figure in politics, unless Penrose laughs the job.

When Hon. Ex-Edition Cade Elhardt declared today that the Germans were generally obsessed with Binkley said it was just what was coming. "I'm it," he replied. "I just return no questions."

I WILL SING YOU A SONG OF OHIO

By Stephen S. Roubright

I will sing you a song of Ohio, The fair seventeenth state of our land. The state which is mother of Presidents, And whose sons are both loyal and grand: It is proud of its beautiful women, Her daughters are both loving and true. And throughout its domain merry children, Do each day gladden our hearts anew.

I will sing you a song of Ohio, The most wonderful state and the best, With its picturesque hills and meek valleys, Which joyful sun-kissed rivers invest: Her centers bear good fish in abundance, Her birds have been in secluded woods, While the willow is decked with sweet flowers, Which seem to garland each rippling brook.

I will sing you a song of Ohio, I will praise her again and again, From her beautiful homes on the hill-top, To the dear cottage down in the glen: All the people are both proud and happy, Kind and true as the bright stars above: What makes homes so dear in old Ohio, Is contentment with thrift, peace and love!

I will sing you a song of Ohio, Let glad melodious voices ring, When each fair daughter is born a princess, And each son is a sovereign king: To where the nation turns to seek counsel, Or seek warriors strong and brave, When called is our national honor, Dear old Ohio's true sons rush to save!

I will sing you a song of Ohio, With our emblem, Old Glory, on high, The pride of the American nation—Hats off there stranger, as you pass by: We will stand for a lot of bad usage, There is much we pass by and for give, But you must deal kindly with Ohio, Or else get out and go elsewhere to live!

MAN TOOK PART OF BLUSHING BRIDE; WHILE WEALTHY WOMAN "WORE THE PANTS" RULES JUDGE AT IRONTON

Relative to Judge Layne's decision in the divorce suit of Nannie H. Wright against D. Gregory Wright, the Irononton this morning said: In Common Pleas court Monday Judge A. J. Layne handed down a decision in the divorce case of Nannie H. Wright against D. Gregory Wright, in which he granted the plaintiff a decree of divorce on her petition and allowed the defendant $300 alimony for expenses in the prosecution of the suit. The defense at once gave notice of appeal and the appeal bond was fixed at $50, which was given.

Following is the complete decision in the case as rendered by Judge Layne:

Section 7307 of the General Code of Ohio reads as follows:

"The husband must support himself by his labor except when he is sick or disabled, or when he is unable to do so, the wife must assist him so far as she is able."

Mr. Wright is able to support himself by his labor except when he is sick or disabled, or when he is unable to do so, the wife must assist him so far as she is able. He failed to support himself at any time while he lived with his wife, except for one year, and except as he rendered his assistance in procuring loans and adjusting claims for her. Mrs. Wright assisted her husband in the above mentioned ways as far as she was able. In this case, the wife was derelict. While well and able to support herself, Mr. Wright was grossly neglected to perform his financial duty toward his wife, but on the contrary played the part of the beautiful bride of a wealthy and influential husband, thereby reversing the situation he being the bride and she the groom; she did the cooking and he did the cleaning and the washing; she put up five thousand dollars to prepare him for trips and she paid the bills. While this unusual matrimonial condition existed, it could not have been out of place for him to have permitted his wife to grow long and to have worn high-heeled shoes and elaborate dresses and she to have been gowned in the style of a man. She did not appear in her own skin, but she did not look upon him with contempt. The beautiful girl, who had been a man, and she played the part of the man with her. Which was to blame? Both. But she was negligent; yes, grossly so. Would it be just and right to hold her to this bargain for life? Just for a punishment for her folly? I think not. She is entitled to be divorced from her; the duty of being a wife toward her husband, with all that means and brings to a good woman. Therefore, Mrs. Wright will be granted a divorce on the grounds of gross neglect of duty.

Now, as to the question of an allowance to Mr. Wright out of the property of his wife. Section 11922 of the General Code of Ohio reads as follows:

"When it appears to the court that the husband is the owner of little or no property and the wife is the owner of lands or personal estate or both the court may adjudge to the husband such share of her real or personal property or both or may decree to him such sum of money out of her estate, payable in gross or by installments as it deems just having due regard to all the circumstances of the parties."

The court does not find that Mr. Wright is the owner of little or no property and that Mrs. Wright is the owner of lands and personal estate to the amount of several thousand dollars. The court finds that for all the services Mr. Wright rendered his wife he was amply paid while he lived with her. The services he rendered her were such as any attorney might have rendered her in procuring loans and in the adjustment of claims. He does not claim that he managed her estate at any time or place. He does not claim that he ever at any time performed a continuous duty such as a man might be employed to perform upon a salary, but that he assisted her only in determining whether or not she would buy certain stocks and bonds in procuring loans upon her collateral security and that he assisted her in adjusting claims against her.

There is a dispute in the evidence as to just how many thousands of dollars many he spent for his own personal benefit. If we take the evidence for it, it runs over fifty thousand dollars in ten years; and if we take his statements, although he does not have any figures that he can rely upon specifically, it is over fifteen thousand dollars. The court feels that Mrs. Wright could have easily employed any attorney in the State of Ohio to have performed all these services for less than fifteen thousand dollars, taking his estimates rather than hers. So, from the standpoint of his actually conferring any financial benefit upon her, the court feels that he has been amply paid for that.

There is another phase, however, of this case. Mrs. Wright is a woman of considerable means; she married a man with no means, whatever; she lived with him ten years; she neglected him for something like two years while he was sick; he is now a strong man, having recovered from his original stomach trouble, according to his own statement; he is forty-eight years of age; a man with a mind of which he boasts and he is employed at the present time, getting a fixed salary, according to his own evidence. However, Mrs. Wright brings suit against him and makes several very gross charges against him in her petition. It became necessary for him at once to come here and employ an attorney to defend his suit, or to permit the accusations to go unchallenged, and the court feels that since Mrs. Wright was willing to pay five thousand dollars to get into this trouble she ought to be willing to cover the expenses of his appearing in court. She treated him as a slave before she married him and she played the part of the man with her. Which was to blame? Both. But she was negligent; yes, grossly so. Would it be just and right to hold her to this bargain for life? Just for a punishment for her folly? I think not. She is entitled to be divorced from her; the duty of being a wife toward her husband, with all that means and brings to a good woman. Therefore, Mrs. Wright will be granted a divorce on the grounds of gross neglect of duty.

Now, as to the question of an allowance to Mr. Wright out of the property of his wife. Section 11922 of the General Code of Ohio reads as follows:

"Dead" Soldier Returns

Employees of the listing department of the Post Street plant of the Irving Drew shoe factory, were given a great surprise Monday when one of their fellow workmen, Private Ova Carrington, walked into the department and started to renew acquaintance with every one. It was a big surprise, as the soldier's friends thought him dead, a victim of a Hun bullet on the soil of France.

It was just as big a surprise to Carrington to have his friends tell him they thought him dead as he wrote to them regularly.

It seems that Carrington wrote hundreds of letters, but that not one was received by his relatives or friends. The failure of his letters to arrive from Carrington, led his friends to think that he had probably been killed in action. It was reported among the workmen for several weeks that Carrington had been killed "over there."

Private Carrington says he also wondered many times what had happened to home folks, as he did not receive but a few letters all the time he was away.

In September, he was a member of Company M, 250th Infantry, but was later transferred to the 26th Division. The returned soldier arrived home with his honorable discharge Sunday evening. He is a son of Mrs. Bertie Carrington, 1506 Eleventh street. Before entering service he was employed at the Drew factory under Foreman Charles Klost.

SAYS DOG DID NOT BITE CHILD

Editor Times:—Please allow me to state in your paper to correct a few mistakes in regard to the dog belonging to J. C. White biting the child belonging to Miss Florence King, of Front street.

The child kicked the dog and a piece of wire attached to his tag pierced his foot.

The dog were both license, I am sure. If people would not allow their children to tease dogs, there would not be so many bitten by them. Dr. Lake killed the dog.

Respectfully,
MRS. J. C. WHITE.

Within two months thereafter, the allied and associated powers will make secret offensive preparations within the territory of their neighbors, whereby they might, when the moment strikes them down with greater certainty and ease. They kept Europe in a ferment by threats of violence, and when they found that their neighbors were resolved to resist their arrogant will, they determined to assert their predominance in Europe by force.

As soon as their preparations were complete, they encouraged a subversive ally to declare war on Serbia on August 23, 1914, a war involving the control of the Balkans, which they knew could not be localized and which was bound to include a general war.

In order to make doubly sure, they refused every attempt at conciliation and conference, until it was too late and the world war was inevitable, for which they had plotted and for which, alone among the nations, they were adequately equipped and prepared.

Germany's responsibility, however, is not confined to having started the war. She is no less responsible for the savage and inhuman manner in which it was conducted. Though Germany was herself the guaranty of peace, as if this were but the end of some more struggle for territory and power. The allied and associated powers therefore feel it necessary to heighten their reply by a clear statement of the judgment of the world laws as have been forced by practically the whole of civilized mankind.

In the view of the allied and associated powers, the war which began on August 1, 1914, was the greatest crime against humanity and freedom of the people that any nation could ever commit. For many years the rulers of Germany, true to the Prussian tradition, strove for a position of dominance in Europe. They were not satisfied with the growing prosperity and influence to which Germany was entitled, which other nations were entitled to accord; they realized that they should be able to dictate and tyrannize over a subdued Europe, as they dictated and tyrannized over a subdued Germany.

In order to attain their ends, they used every channel through which to show their own subjects in the doctrine that might was right in international affairs. They never ceased to expand German ambitions by land and sea and to propagate the falsehood that it was necessary because Germany's neighbors were jealous of her prosperity and power.

Sowed Hostility. She sought to sow hostility and enmity, instead of friendship, between nations. The Germans developed a system of espionage and intrigue through which they were enabled to stir up international rebellion and even to bring about the outbreak of war.

The conduct of Germany is almost unparalleled in human history. The terrible responsibility which lies at her door can be seen by the fact that not less than seven million dead lie buried in Europe, while more than twenty million others carry upon them the evidence of wounds and suffering, system of espionage and intrigue through which they were enabled to stir up international rebellion and even to bring about the outbreak of war.
